

Evaluating Compliance Effectiveness

Educational Program Preview

This program outlines how a health care organization can improve its level of performance in several critical outcome areas associated with “compliance effectiveness.”

Opportunities addressed throughout the presentation include the following:

- I. Specifically identifying how internal coding and billing professionals are impacted by compliance requirements, and how that translates into opportunity for improvement
- II. Outlining the core components of an effective compliance program, and how to perform annual risk assessments to improve compliance effectiveness
- III. Reviewing specific examples of coding and billing risk, reasonable and necessary services risk and documentation risks as identified by the OIG
- IV. Outlining where compliance risk typically originates in the day to day operations
- V. Review several case study examples of selecting areas of focus (i.e. consultations, modifier 25, under-coding, etc.)
- VI. Provide strategies for improved compliance communication
- VII. Outline how to evaluate compliance effectiveness within the Organization
